Excerpt from De Sculptura: Works in the City; Some Ongoing Questions Book relates to Buch which comes from the German Buche the beech tree. Plates of beechwood were carved on one Side, for the making of the first printed books of Europe. This book is a first partial documentation of more than one work in which I am engaged. Word of mouth has been its continuing means. The way of talking by people who arrived by chance, and those who somehow knew of the work, tended to be interrelated by their choices of words; in part that makes this printing possible as another series of questions.
