The Counselor A Screenplay Cormac

In a few words, Cormac's screenplay for "The Counselor" works far better as a work of literature than it does as a film. Granted, I enjoyed the film, but I read the screenplay first and felt it had more power. It definitely occupies prime McCarthy territory and features several memorable characters and set pieces.

The script harkens back to the pre-Reformation morality plays as well. One of the interesting differences between The Counselor and No Country is that Moss loses his own life for his hubris as well as forfeiting his wife's life, while the counselor lives on to experience the horrendous cost of his hubris. In the Ridley Scott interview someone linked us to, he says that Fassbinder does a wonderful job of accessing the full horror of that tragic denouement.

It's just you, IMO this is Ridley Scott's best film since Blade Runner and it's all because of Cormac McCarthy's script.
